Patients are treated like royalty

REGAL Health Services has been assisting veterans with community health needs for more than 45 years. In that time the service has cared for 55,000 veterans.

One of those clients, Elsie Shuttleworth of Villawood, said she could not fault the service.

"I think it's marvellous, they give me everything I want," she said.

Mrs Shuttleworth has been using the service since her husband passed away 24 years ago.

Since then she has had bowel and mouth cancer and numerous operations, but said receiving care at home had helped her to stay independent.

"This is the only home I've ever had," she said.

"It's nice to be here and have someone come around to have a coffee and a chat with."

The service provides Mrs Shuttleworth with assistance from a registered nurse, whose duties include showering, providing wound care, medicating and blood pressure readings.

Regal Health began when founder Patricia Shepherd discovered a lack of community nursing.

"The service aims to ensure people are treated with respect in the community," CEO Anna Shepherd said.

"Particularly in the case with veterans, it's a privilege to care for these people who have fought for our country."

The Sydney-wide service is available seven days. Details: 9264 4555.
